

VOCATIONS

A construction worker

A construction worker is a multi-skilled professional in the construction industry, whose tasks can include almost all house building and concrete construction work. Construction workers mainly work for construction companies.

Job requirements

- The tasks require versatile technical knowledge and manual skills.
- The construction worker must be able to work independently as well as in a group.
- Creative problem-solving skills are needed in the profession.
- The construction worker must be able to work in dust, noise and changing weather conditions without compromising the quality of their work.
- The profession is physically quite demanding and requires good physical condition.
- Knowing and following occupational safety regulations is important.
- Work restrictions are usually caused by dust and glue allergies, epilepsy due to the risk of falling, and rheumatic diseases due to cold outdoor work.

Created with AI on 26.9.2024.

Painter

Surface treatment finishers work in versatile surface treatment tasks in the metal, wood and construction industries, as well as in painting shops. The tasks have in common the improvement of features, durability and appearance of products, or the built environment by means of surface treatment. Depending on the workplace, in addition to painting, the tasks may include tiling, and chemical and electrochemical surface treatments.

Job requirements

- The profession requires mastery of surface treatment technologies as well as manual skills, an independent working attitude, care, and perseverance.
- Depending on the workplace, tasks include painting, coating with various coatings, and chemical and electrochemical surface treatments. Being allergic to chemicals used will cause restrictions for work.

Created with AI on 26.9.2024.

Property maintenance operative

Jobs and tasks

Property maintenance operatives focus on property maintenance and repair tasks. The job description includes monitoring the property's technology, small maintenance and repair work, and yard care. Property maintenance operatives work e.g. in real estate service and property maintenance companies. The profession requires an independent and responsible approach to work, technical know-how and customer service skills.

Add your own image here

The duties of the property maintenance operative include

- Light maintenance, installations and repairs are part of the tasks.
- The property maintenance operative will call a specialist if the task is a more demanding or requires a license, such as electrical work.
- Outdoor work, i.e. yard cleaning and maintenance of green areas, snow removal in winter and gritting of driveways. Cleaning of the stairways and sauna facilities is done by the cleaning staff.

Professional requirements

- The property maintenance operative works without the direct supervision of management.
- In the profession, you can decide the order of work and working methods quite independently.
- If necessary, the management is contacted by phone. The information about urgent tasks is also communicated this way.

Baker

A baker works in a wide variety of tasks. He may be working in a small pastry shop or a large bakery or in a factory in the food industry. The work is often in shifts, so good physical condition is important.

The profession requires knowledge of bakery products, raw materials and the entire production process.

Professional requirements

- A baker must have good manual skills.
- In his work, he needs good eyesight as well as senses of smell and taste.
- In large bakeries, you also need to know the production process and know how to use production equipment efficiently.
- The job requires teamworking skills and customer service orientation.

Add your own
image here

HINT!
You can make the objects on this page with the Insert Tab →

- SmartArt
- Table
- Shapes

	Salaries of professions
	Starting salary	Average salary
Construction worker
Painter
Property maintenance operator
Baker

