Task Name

Explore rules of order

Introduction

Each educational institution, workplace or even a residential community has its own rules of order. The rules of order are not only a nuisance to each other, but they ensure a physically, psychologically, and socially safe and comfortable study and working environment.

Plan

Let's get acquainted with the rules of order of our own educational institution or workplace and consider their importance and importance as part of our daily lives.

Task

Check out the rules of your own institution or workplace. Which 3 rules of order do you think are the most important or most relevant to you? Why?

In your answer, tell us which place you were familiar with the rules of order, which were the top 3 or most relevant, and why? After your answer, you can comment and discuss with other group members the importance of rules of order.

Plan

First, let's think independently;

- What thoughts and feelings does the video evoke?
- how can I prevent and tackle bullying?

After our own answers, we discuss the topic with our own group and create the group's own plan for the absence of bullying.

Task

- What thoughts and feelings do video bullying situations and adult response make you feel?
- What could I prevent and tackle bullying in an educational institution or workplace?

Book 3 things and then you can comment and talk to other group members about tackling bullying.

Nordic Diversity trainers – blog Learn 10 ways to combat racism

<https://www.nordicdiversitytrainers.fi/blog/opi-10-tapaa-vastustaa-rasismia>

Plan

Learn about materials about the effects of racism and how you can resist racism.

First think about the task section questions independently, and then you can comment and discuss the topic with your group.

Task

- What standards of racism and inequality do I recognise about my own climate in my institution or workplace?
- What can or will I do for myself to improve the atmosphere in that place towards equality and a norm-free atmosphere?

First, think about the questions independently. You can then comment and talk to your group. Keep the debate open, the liberalisation of standards requires an open debate that accepts different opinions.
